Unique British design

embraced by US

Following its sixth appearance across the US as 'The Bed of the Future' in Guestroom 2010, the state-of-the-art, ergonomically designed Ammique body support and sleep system – which uses linked rods and small caps instead of a mattress – is to be manufactured in the US.

The cutting-edge bed has been developed and designed by Colin and Marlene Greenhalgh at their design studio in Silver Street, Midsomer Norton. Colin and Marlene and their team at Ammique Ltd will continue to oversee operations in the UK as they expand to meet growing demands in the US.

The first exclusive Ammique 'sleepscape' studio offering a full range of companion products and services including the Ammique bed is due to be opened in Austin, the flourishing capital city of Texas, within the next six months.
